----- | In order to make this map fit better on the battlefield and not create a massive mess in lobbies, I placed the maps in groups of 4 and chose a map each from the group. If you're unfamiliar with how they work, they are simply like a match of 1 person vs. 1 person. If you're unfamiliar with the map selection process so far, you should definitely know that a map can choose from any map on the field. For the purposes of this guide, we'll also choose maps from the first or second group, so your group will be composed of 1v1s (and yes, VIRSTILE plays every map from the first vs. second). I'd like to give a detailed breakdown of this process over the course of the whole guide, but please ask in the comments if you'd care to add something for other areas. I'll also give some tips if your in doubt as to where you should make a point of picking an ideal map. As I said before, if you know exactly what map you'd like to use in each match up, it's up to you. However, if you don't know exactly what you want for your map that you should use in each match up, this guide will help as much as possible. I recommend taking some time and practice for each map, as it's really fun to practice your point of view. Map Order I've chosen to place the maps in the order the game takes place in, as it provides enough time for preparation of the first map. The first map will actually have one of those first map, Mvp1, while the second maps will be the second map chosen by the map selection process.
